NOTE TO MRS. THAW CAUSED TRAGEDY WHITE

Architect Said to Have Written to Young Woman Only a Few Days Ago, Thus Precipitating Husband's Vengeance---Defence May Be Insanity.

BY BOSTON AMERICAN LEASED WIRE.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Harry Kendall Thaw, the wealthy young Pittsburg man who shot and killed Stanford White, the famous architect, at the Madison Square Roof Garden performance last evening, was arraigned in Jefferson Market Police Court to-day, charged with murder, and held for the action of the coroner.

Thaw was locked up in the Tombs. The inquest has been set for 10:30 o'clock Thursday forenoon.

"We will prove," said Police Inspector Schmittberger, "that it was a case of first degree murder. Our investigations will disprove the theory of insanity which Thaw's friends will put forward."

Emotional insanity, caused by brooding over a wrong which Thaw said White had done his wife before they were married, it is urged by his friends, was the cause of the tragedy.

Note Enraged Thaw.

A note said to have been sent by the architect to Mrs. Thaw a few days ago, which her husband saw, snapped the last thread of his self-control. He bought the automatic revolver and White was warned that his life was in danger.

Mrs. Thaw, who was Evelyn Nesbit, once an artist's model and chorus girl, famous for her beauty, and who was with her husband when the shooting took place, could not be found by the police last evening, she disappearing immediately after the murder.

Early to-day Mrs. Thaw appeared at police headquarters, where she asked for her husband. She was told that he had been taken to court. She went there and later to the Tombs. No attempt was made by the police to arrest her, although it was said earlier that she would be held as a witness.

Thaw was taken from the West Thirtieth street police station in a patrol wagon to police headquarters. He was handcuffed to Police Captain Hodgkins. The prisoner was extremely nervous. He tried to elude the photographers by pulling his hat down over his eyes and holding his hands before his face.

Lined Up With Thieves.

At police headquarters Thaw was photographed and measured for the rogues' gallery. He was lined up with thieves and other prisoners and his pedigree taken. Then he was put in the patrol wagon again and rattled over to Jefferson Market Court.

Lester Dean O'Reilly, who was connected with the San Francisco case, looked after Thaw's interests in court.

Burr McIntosh, the former actor and photographer, and an old friend of Thaw's family, was waiting for Thaw in a side room of the court house. "All of Thaw's family are in Pittsburg and he has no friend to come to him," said McIntosh. "I do not know what relations Mr. White had with Mrs. Nesbit before her marriage, but I do know that she has been a faithful wife, and that he has been a good husband."

While McIntosh was speaking, Thaw, handcuffed to a plain clothes police

Why Not Enforce the Present Law?

(From Editorial in the Springfield Republican.)

Anyone can see for himself that a new enactment against the merging of street railways while it can be made effective against future operations of the kind, will go far to secure the New Haven Company in its present acquisitions. Is it not the better course, then, to apply what law already exists and have its scope and effect authoritatively determined before enacting new law?

The present law is broad and sweeping. It certainly covers in spirit the case at hand, and there can be little question, it would seem, that it covers the case in letter. Let it be applied. That is the first thing to be done, and it is for the government to see that it is done.

"My First Friend," Said Thaw.

"It was very good of you to come," said Thaw when he saw McIntosh. "You are the first friend I have seen this morning."

Thaw and McIntosh shook hands and sat down in a corner where they engaged in a short conversation.

"Don't tell my mother," Thaw said to McIntosh. "The young millionaire complained of being starved from hunger, and McIntosh left with O'Reilly, who said he would act as Thaw's counsel until one of the firms of DeLoach & DeLoach, who had been retained as chief counsel in the case, arrived."

Captain Hodgkins, who came over with Thaw, said that the young man would make no statement and that he made no objection to being photographed and measured by the Bertillon system. McIntosh came back with a tray containing a hot milk, some crackers and several papers. Thaw ate heartily, though he had previously complained of being hungry.

"Prison here is not all it could be," he remarked. "His arraignment before Magistrate Barlow was over within a minute, and he was remanded to the custody of the coroner. Mr. DeLoach came and he and his client had a few minutes' conference. They then went to the criminal court building, where he was arraigned before Coroner Peter body."

'YOU WRONGED MY WIFE,' SAID THAW AS HE SHOT

THREE PHOTOGRAPHS OF MRS. HARRY THAW, FORMER CHORUS GIRL AND MODEL, WHOSE HUSBAND KILLED WHITE

TOLD POLICEMAN HE KILLED WHITE

NEW YORK, June 26.—A friend of Harry Thaw declared today that the killing was committed on the anniversary of a wrong done Miss Nesbit by White. Policeman Anthony E. Debs, who arrested Thaw, will be the chief witness in the man's trial, as Thaw's mental attitude was indicated to him in a conversation.

"Ruined My Life."

"As Thaw stepped down out of the elevator in custody of the fireman, I stepped up to him," said Policeman Debs. "Did you do this?" I asked, and he says to me, "Yes I did. That man ruined my wife. I won't be sure whether he said 'wife' or 'life.' Then he went on saying, 'That man ruined my home. I guess he won't ruin any more homes. Is he dead?' I told him he was. 'I'm dam'd glad I made a good job of it,' he says. Then he shut up like a clam."

"A woman, who I have since learned was his wife, rushed up and threw her arms about his neck, crying, 'Oh, Harry, Harry, I didn't think you would do it that way.' 'It's all right, it's all right,' he told her as he patted her on the back. Then she whispered something in his ear and jumped into an automobile with another man and rode away. A crowd of women out of the audience got around him, and began shaking his hand and sympathizing with him. 'Why did you do it?' they kept asking and hating in until I showed them away. As we walked over to the station house past the Holland House, the cabmen there all knew him and tipped their hats to him."

"In the station house, after Thaw had passed the ordeal at the sergeant's desk, he was led into the assembly room, where he threw himself on a bench, cocked his hat back on his head and lighted a cigarette."

"I saw that day—several sitting there, big, fat and big, and there she was all pale and trembling and nervous, said Thaw in an abstract way, less in answer to the question than as if he were describing out loud some painful mental picture."

"How did you happen to do it?" was asked.

"Blackguard Is Here."

"We were all at a party in Martin's," Thaw said. "You can find out the names of the others there, but I was sitting some distance from my wife. Suddenly I saw her get very pale and begin to shiver, and I thought she was ill. I made a motion to inquire what was the matter, and she called a waiter and wrote a note which she sent around the table to me."

"The note said: 'The dirty blackguard is here.'"

"Then I turned and saw that fat scoundrel sitting there, big and healthy, and then I saw her and how she was."

"Thaw would not add a word to this."

"Have you always made it a practice to carry a pistol?" he was asked.

"I never used to," he answered.

"Did Mr. White make any motion to attack you?"

"What?" said Mr. Thaw. The question was repeated. Thaw nodded his head in the affirmative.

Thaw would make no further statement, although Police Captain Hodgkinson and Coroner Dooley questioned him until 4 o'clock this morning, but could elicit no further information from him.

Thaw said he would not talk until he could obtain counsel.

To Have Best Counsel.

H. T. Bemis of Cleveland, a friend of Thaw, dispatched several telegrams and telephoned in an endeavor to get into communication with Joseph Choate, William B. Hornblower or Lawyer Doherty. Mr. Choate is in Brookridge, Mass. Mr. Bemis said that Mr. Thaw would have the best legal talent obtainable.

After the Captain and coroner had left Thaw he took off his collar, tie and "Tuxedo" coat, placed it under his head, stretched out on a wooden bench and fell into a mild slumber. After leaving him Coroner Dooley was with the condition of the prisoner indicated any mental disorder, with the possible use of drugs.

"No," said Dooley, "the man was perfectly rational. Now that I have seen the prisoner and examined several witnesses of the shooting, I am satisfied that it was a very deliberate murder—the most deliberate in my official experience. I have ordered that Thaw be arraigned in Jefferson Market Court and then produced before me in the Criminal Court building."

Mrs. Thaw disappeared completely immediately after the shooting at Madison Square Garden. After throwing her arms about her husband's neck and kissing him, she was seen to enter a taxicab and drive away.

WHY THAW SHOT WHITE

From the story told by Policeman A. E. Debs, who arrested Thaw at the theatre.

As Thaw stepped down out of the elevator in custody of the fireman, I stepped up to him.

"Did you do this?" I asked, and he said to me:

"Yes, I did. That man ruined my wife."

I won't be sure whether he said "wife" or "life."

Then he went on saying, "That man ruined my home. I guess he won't ruin any more homes. Is he dead?"

I told him he was.

"I'm dam'd glad I made a good job of it," he says.

Then he shut up like a clam.

ing him as he was led off to the station house, Mrs. Thaw jumped into an automobile and rode away. The police searched all night for her without avail.

It is thought she has gone to the country residence of George Coleman Carnegie, a friend of her husband, at Roslyn, L. I. Coroner Dooley tried to get Thaw to tell the whereabouts of his wife.

Wife a "Trump."

"Don't worry about her," Thaw said. "She's a tramp and will stick by me. She'll turn up when she is wanted, but I don't want you to disturb her for the present. There's no running after her to-night."

Mrs. Thaw early today called at police headquarters and later saw her husband in the Tombs.

Only a week ago Thaw told a friend that White had wronged his wife and had ought to be put out of the way. Thaw is reported to have spoken to the friend as follows:

"Stanford White wronged my wife. He is a scoundrel. He ought to be put out of the way."

After Evelyn came to New York Ledger heard of her and gave her a place in the chorus of the "Wild Rose" at the Casino.

"Then Stanford White found her. Out. Do you know him? Ask any of your friends who know about fast life in this town, and they'll tell you he was notorious as a rake-off of young girls on the stage."

"He became acquainted with Evelyn, took her to after-theatre suppers, and out in his automobile. You can guess the rest."

"He sent her after a while to a school in Madison, N. J., to finish her education. It was one of his visits home from that school that I first met her."

When Thaw and his wife came to New York from Pittsburg two weeks ago it became known that he was going about armed. Some of White's friends spoke to him of Thaw's threats, but he laughed them off.

Sunday afternoon one of the carriage drivers at the Holland House gave Thaw walking up and down in front of the hotel muttering and yawning his arm and talking about killing someone. That night White went to Hammett's roof garden. After the performance he went to Burn's restaurant at sixth avenue and Forty-third street.

Thaw entered the place and the pair of deadly enemies sat in a table in the rear of the place and together in conversation until 2:30 o'clock Monday morning. What transpired at the table White evidently did not relate to his friends.

RECALLS FISKE KILLING.

The Thaw tragedy is without a parallel in New York's criminal history since the shooting of James Fiske by Edward Stearns thirty-four years ago. In that tragedy, as in this, an actress was the connecting link between the two parties.

On account of the beautiful blonde Magdon, who was the connecting link between the two parties, because of White's past relations with the actress, who has since become Thaw's wife.

The shooting occurred a few minutes before 11 o'clock last night, as the shot of the bullet was heard.

"The man who shot me," said Thaw, "was a scoundrel. He ought to be put out of the way."

Thaw was taken to the hospital and is now lying in bed, unable to move. He is expected to recover.

last night here. Stephen Thaw is a member of the class of 1907. He was the founder of the Yale Monthly Magazine, which started last winter and published three months later, having lost over ten thousand dollars.

"I am the nephew of Harry Thaw," said William Thaw, "our fathers were half brothers. I know nothing of the matter."

White matter, as I had never heard his name mentioned in connection with Harry Thaw.

Mr. Thaw began telephoning to relatives about 9 o'clock this morning. He reached George Carnegie in New York, and spoke to the brother of Harry Thaw, Charles Thaw, who is at Watch Hill, R. I. Charles Thaw was coming here to the Yale-Harvard baseball game to-day.

THAW IN TOMBS; AWAITS INQUEST

By Boston American. Leased Wire. NEW YORK, June 26. Thaw's friends took clothing to him this morning, and when he was brought from his cell he put on a business suit. Harry Melrose was sitting for him and the two entered the courtroom in court," asked Thaw.

Melrose assured him that this had been done. Thaw had gathered in front of the Tombs station and a crowd of men went out to clear the street.

Following Thaw went up to Thaw with a pair of handcuffs and held them out. "Is that necessary?" asked Thaw. "I don't intend to run away."

Banker Elliot C. Lee Leads Long Line of Cars to Houghton's Pond, Blue Hills.

Kids From Wanderers' Home, Children's Mission, Etc., Given Time of Their Lives.

As a sample, you should have seen Elliot C. Lee, the carefully groomed and dapper banker, steering his exclusive busoplane while touring over with the poor old Helen Clark from the Little Wanderers' Home—staying by his side.

In the front seat were Miss Maudie Krum, the kindergarten teacher at the home, and four boys.

And a long line of forty more big autos driven by members of the Massachusetts Automobile Club and filled with more and more poor little boys and girls from institutions, followed the latter car guided by Mr. Lee. There were about two hundred and fifty in the party.

Helen had been looking forward to this for over two years. She was to give an other free automobile riding to the poor children this year.

Treat to the Little Ones.

Her house was crowded with happy little ones like to-day. It was such a big treat to their little lives. It was such a big treat to their little lives. It was such a big treat to their little lives.

The house crowded with happy little ones like to-day. It was such a big treat to their little lives. It was such a big treat to their little lives. It was such a big treat to their little lives.

They reported at the club at 8:30 with their cars, which, grouped around the Little Wanderers' Home, the Children's Mission, the Children's Home on Worcester street, picked up the little fellows and their mothers for the ride.

From 8 to 9:30 the big cars, with the children aboard and with a nurse or other attendant in charge of them, were rolling back to the club and filling up on the east side of Boston.

Start With Children Shouting.

At 9:30 President Lee turned on the power in his pilot car, and, with flag flying and with the children cheering and waving, the line of cars started on its merry way.

First in line was the car of A. E. Morrison of the Marlborough Motor Car Co., driving a new Buick. He had about five youngsters from the Children's Mission, in charge of them, and a few other little girls. Mildred Hogan and four other boys and girls followed.

They arrived there about 11 o'clock. Lunch was served, and then informal games were arranged for the children. The party started will be made in time to get the children home for their supper.

NEED NOT PAY FOR PURCHASES FROM A TRUST

Missouri Judge Rules That Such Bills Are Same as Gambling Debts.

ST. LOUIS, June 26.—In the Circuit Court Judge Ryan ruled that a purchaser does not have to pay for goods bought from a so-called trust. The Circuit Court Manufacturing Company had brought suit for $250 against Joseph F. Walsh, a gambler, for goods, which the company termed the company's "trust," and that Walsh did not have to pay for goods bought from a trust any more than he would have to pay a gambling debt.

HOUSE AGENTS REPEL PLURALITY OF MERCHANTS

HEARING ON GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE TO-DAY, AND BILL WILL BE PASSED THIS WEEK.

Governor Trumbull's message to the Legislature during the passage of a law giving the State control of its own street railroads is given the first hearing to-day. Speedy action will be taken on the Governor's suggestion and a bill will be reported this week.

At the present time men who were strongly in favor of the merger have come out openly in favor of the anti-merger bill, which would prevent a foreign corporation like the New York, New Haven & Hartford from dominating Massachusetts' street railroads, while, on the other hand, without favoring the law.

In the intention of Speaker Cole and President Dana of the Senate to finish the legislative session by the last of the week, so that the hearings upon the anti-merger bill will probably be continued all day to-day and to-morrow.

While many of the joint committee will not discuss the precise form of the bill which is to be presented, they agreed to have a draft bill sent to the committee on the subject of the anti-merger law.

A prominent member of the House committee on railroads, who was strongly in favor of the merger, was deviated yesterday as he was requested to vote in favor of the anti-merger bill if the interests of stockholders in the Massachusetts street railroads could be properly protected.

FOUR MILLION BANANAS TO GO OVERBOARD

Fruit on Ship Ripened Too Soon and Is Destroyed to Save the Market.

Sixty thousand dollars' worth of ripe bananas will be dumped into the ocean late this afternoon by the United Fruit Company to save the market from a slump in prices.

The bananas are now on the fruit company's steamship Espana, which arrived at Boston from the West Indies yesterday. The company had brought about 100,000 bunches of green bananas, which it intended to ripen on board, but the ripening process was so rapid that the fruit would have been over-ripe by the time it reached Boston.

SIX POLICEMEN IN BAND OF BURGLARS?

MORAN AND O'MEARA SILENT ON SENSATIONAL RUMORS—MERCHANTS COMPLAIN.

Members of the police force in the downtown district are agitated over the report that there is under way in the latter city a scheme to organize a band of burglars. The charge that six police officers have become an organized gang of burglars, has become an organized gang of burglars.

District Attorney Moran was asked what he was doing to the matter.

"How did you get on in that?" he demanded of the reporter.

"Then the story is true that you are investigating the charges of burglary by police officers?" he was asked.

"I must decline to say a word until I do not talk about official business," he said.

THE J. B. COOK PIANO CO.'S BIG REMOVAL SALE CONTINUES.

The Most Wonderful Cut in Piano Prices on Record.

We move to a larger building and our stock of pianos is too large to move. That's the only reason why we are able to buy a piano for a fraction of its regular price.

Don't purchase a piano until you call and see for yourself what fine instruments we have. And what a lot of money you will save.

Don't infer from the great cut in piano prices that we are going out of business. Our one and only reason for this sale is to avoid moving our immense stock of pianos to our new building.

While the sales have been entirely up to our fondest expectations, we still have a large number of the different makes and styles from which to select.

We would specially mention two fine Brewster upright pianos in walnut and mahogany, regular price $250, now placed on sale at $145. Also two fine Sherwood & Sons upright mahogany cases, regular price $250, now go at $127.

Many other fine instruments at similar reductions.

During this sale we have taken in an unusually large number of piano of prominent makes in exchange for our regular line of new pianos.

Prices please will be shown out at a sacrifice.

Don't miss this sale if you are in the least interested, as you will always have something to regret.
